PREFACE

The first marriage license act in New Jersey requiring license bonds to be filed in the Secretary of State's office was passed in 1719 (although by a previous practice earlier bonds were filed there), and this practically remained the law until 1795, when bonds were no longer required, although some were filed there as late as 1800. After 1795 all records of marriages were to be filed in the Clerk's office of the county wherein marriages were solemnized, and the Hunterdon county records begin with that year. In 1876 the Legislature provided that reports of marriages should be transmitted to boards of health, and, while changes have been made since as to the particular local official to whom the record should be sent, there has been no return to the older system of sending them to the County Clerk's office, and hence that custom more or less ended with 1876.

For a full account of the earlier legislation in this State concerning marriages, see the article on "The Marriage Laws of New Jersey" by William Nelson, in Vol. XXII, First Series of "New Jersey Archives," which volume contains the records of all marriage bonds filed in the Secretary of State's office from 1665 to 1800.

The Marriage records in the Clerk's office of Hunterdon county are in four volumes, containing the original entries, perhaps sometimes made by the pastors themselves, as appears by the handwriting, but otherwise by the County Clerk. For marriages previous to 1795 reference must be had to the "Marriage License" books in Trenton, in the Secretary of State's office, or to Vol. XXII of the New Jersey Archives (first series), in which the names and dates of these Trenton records are carefully printed, although without the accompanying data of the signers of the marriage bonds (usually a parent or relative of one of the parties); otherwise to the records of the local churches, where they exist. The names are spelled in most cases as they appear upon the records. Where corrections have been made they are based on Bible records.

Practically all marriages in this list appear twice, under the name of the husband and the maiden name of the wife. In a few cases, where one name is omitted in the records, or is indecipherable, it has necessarily been omitted here. Every effort has been made to make this list accurate, but those who have had experience in examining old public records will realize that absolute accuracy is impossible.

The figures following the date of marriage refer to the volume and page in the original records. The names in parentheses are of the officiating clergymen or Justices of the Peace.

The first record was filed July 5, 1795, and the last December 26, 1884. The records give residence, and names of parents in some cases, but they are omitted here. A considerable number of residents of adjoining counties will be found herein, and likewise some Hunterdon couples went across the line to be married.

Hunterdon County at the commencement of these records included practically all of Mercer County (which was established in 1838). Hopewell Township, originally included in that part of Hunterdon set off to Mercer, was returned to Hunterdon in 1844, but in 1845 was again set off to Mercer, with its northern boundary extended to the old Amwell line.

Tewksbury Township was annexed to Somerset County in 1844, but returned to Hunterdon in 1845. For the marriages of residents of these Townships for those years it will be necessary to consult Mercer and Somerset records respectively. The Somerset records are now being published in the "Somerset County Historical Quarterly."

The second volume of Hunterdon County marriages, now being prepared, will contain those obtained from the Township records of 1848-1875, Church and Pastors' record books, and family Bibles. No promise can be given as to the date of its publication, but it is hoped that it may be by 1923. Several of the Township record books have not yet been found. Copy sufficient for about sixty pages is now in hand.

For additions and corrections, see pages 330 and 335.
